Important Academic Integrity <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Academic integrity is ‘the expectation that teachers, students, researchers and all members of the academic community act with: honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility.’ Breaching academic integrity is also known as ‘academic misconduct’ or ‘academic dishonesty’. • All higher education students are expected to uphold academic integrity during their studies. An important way of upholding your academic integrity is by contacting your teachers or your school if you are having study problems and working with them on solutions. Studying and learning provides the knowledge expected of a graduate from your course but any form of cheating means that you could miss important professional knowledge and practice that you need to succeed in your future career. • Academic dishonesty or cheating includes acts of plagiarism, misrepresentation, fabrication, failure to reference materials used properly and forgery. These may include but are not limited to claiming the work of others as your own, deliberately applying false and inaccurate information, copying the work of others in part or whole, allowing others in the course to copy your work in part or whole, failing to appropriately acknowledge the work of other scholars/authors through acceptable referencing standards, purchasing papers or writing papers for other students and submitting the same paper twice for the same subject.

- The foundation of good academic work is honesty. Maintaining academic integrity upholds the standards of the University.
- The responsibility for maintaining integrity in all the activities of the academic community lies with the students as well as the faculty and the University. Everyone in this community must work together to ensure that the values of truth, trust and justice are upheld.

Academic dishonesty affects the University's reputation and devalues the degrees offered.

- The University will impose serious penalties on students who are found to have violated the Policy. The following penalties may be imposed: Expulsion, Suspension, Zero mark/fail grade, Marking down, Re-doing/re-submitting of assignments or reports, and Verbal or written warning.

Course Overview

This unit aims to develop students' ability to translate English into Chinese in a professional manner in the business context. Students will learn the history of translation, the differences between English and Chinese in the grammar, sound, writing system and thinking way, different types of translation, and various translation skills including addition, omission and restructuring, and how to translate passive voice, negative sentences, and subordinate clauses. Students are required to translate in a cross-culture background, and to get familiar with the business language and proper nouns.

Course Goals

- By the end of this course you should be able to:
- Apply basic theories and principles used for translation, appreciating linguistic differences between English and Chinese.
- Apply basic skills and techniques to translate English texts into Chinese.
- Produce accurate and natural translations giving appropriate consideration to target language grammar and conventions.
- Demonstrate a better understanding of translating as a key cross-cultural communication tool.
- Conduct self-reflection, critical analysis, and problem solving for translation practice.

About Xianda College of Economics and Humanities Shanghai International Studies University

Xianda College of Economics and Humanities, Shanghai International Studies University, was established in 2004 and was one of the first full-time independent institutions of higher education in Shanghai approved by the Ministry of Education. It now has two campuses: Hongkou and Chongming. Hongkou Campus is located in the heart of northeast downtown in Shanghai, adjacent to Shanghai International Studies University, whereas Chongming Campus is situated in Chenjia Town, Chongming District, with a beautiful neoclassical Tuscan style architecture and unique ecological environment complementing each other.

Benefiting from the support of the excellent teaching faculty and expertise in foreign language teaching and research of Shanghai International Studies University, we have built a talent cultivation system. It lays a strong emphasis on language learning, economics subjects and coordinated development of other disciplines (professional learning and English). Currently, it offers 22 undergraduate programs in six main fields of literature, law, economics, management, education and art, with approximately 8000 full-time undergraduate students.

Adhering to the open mode of running the college, we take the path of globalization of higher education by introducing advanced educational concepts and management modes adopted in leading domestic and foreign universities. We have introduced talented returnees, accounting for more than 50% of the teaching faculty, and established solid, friendly and cooperative partnerships with over 100 prestigious universities in 16 countries and regions, including the United Kingdom, the United States, Canada, Australia, Germany, France, Spain, Switzerland, Japan, Korea, Egypt, Jordan, the United Arab Emirates, Singapore, Hong Kong, China and Taiwan, China. Through programs of credit transfer, co-operative internship, student exchange, government scholarship, dual bachelor's degrees and combined bachelor's and master's degree programs, it offers students with a variety of overseas opportunities to involve them in different international contexts to develop their global outlook and to improve their cross-cultural communication skill.

We embrace students' individuality and enhances their foreign language skills by offering a varied, wide selection of English or bilingual classes.
